Summary:

To benefit from knowing God and how wonderful He is, we need an innocent approach and a childlike attitude filled with humility and amazement. He's too big for us to understand fully, but we can't help but feel awed when we look back on our lives and contemplate on how far God brought us and what He delivered us from. He's well able to perform miracles and do the impossible. Not only does He regenerate us in our emotional and spiritual health, but also in our physical health. Everything about God begins and ends with marvelous, amazing wonders. He has done miraculous things through people in the Bible; He wants to do the same with us. We mustn't be moved by anything going on around us; God can, and will, deliver us in a mighty way.

Notes:

1. We experience God's amazing nature and character when we're open to His works. God is a God of wonders, known by many names. Studying His wonderful nature reveals His ability to put His glory on display in our lives.
2. Spiritually, if we don't stay as a child in our innocence and attitude, we get to a point where we're too grown up. Children believe easily and have strong faith. God wants us to stay humble and teachable, and not lose our sense of wonder.
3. God can work miracles through anything and anyone. He can do things no one else can. There's no one else like God. We must never forget the marvelous things He has done in our lives. He didn't have to save us or provide for us, but He did so because He wanted to.
4. In the Bible, we see examples of God manifesting Himself to those who believed in Him. God wants to work His wonders through us. He did miracles through the disciples and through Paul; He can do them through us as well.
